

MICHAEL GOLDSTROM

Dubbed “a tour de force that will leave you roaring” by the Los Angeles Times, comedian Michael Goldstrom has been seen on Comedy Central, HBO, NBC, ABC, A&E, Reelzchannel, in film, on and off Broadway, at Walt Disney Concert Hall with the LA Philharmonic, and with the New York Philharmonic at Avery Fisher Hall. The first graduate of the Juilliard School Drama Division and Columbia University to shift into comedy, he’s been called “amazing” (Los Angeles Times), “blisteringly funny” (LA Weekly), “impressive” (NY Daily News), “brilliant” (Times Delphic Online), “very funny” (Broadway.com) “masterful”, (Chautauquan Daily), “marvelously colorful” (Backstage West), and “absolutely magnificent” (LAstagescene).

Growing up in the wilds of San Francisco, Dallas and New York City, with a Romanian mother and libidinous father, Michael brings a uniquely international yet American perspective to comedy. Morphing into different personalities from around the world, he passionately explores contemporary issues of love, identity, and technology creating “a truly engaging figure onstage.” (Hartford Courant).

Based in Los Angeles, he has two television pilots and a feature film in development, and he teaches at the Los Angeles Opera. He loves chocolate.
